WILSON TO HAVE LEGAL OPINION

Will Use it in New Note He is Now Preparing for Germany

WILL BE READY TODAY

Will Show Question Raised by Kaiser Concerning Arms and Reservists on Lusitania Irrelevant.

Washington, D. C., June 4—President Wilson will have before him within a few hours a legal opinion disposing of Germany's latest contentions in the Lusitania case. It will then be up to him to decide how much of it to make a part of the new German note, expected to be approved by the cabinet today and then dispatched to Berlin.

The opinion will state positively that the question raised by Germany concerning the alleged presence of arms and Canadian reservists on the ship is irrelevant. It will strip the German reply of its most vital contentions and will narrow the issue involved to the original American position.

The affidavit filed with the State Department, purporting to show that guns were mounted on the Lusitania and that there were hidden explosives chiefly guncotton, on board, will be considered.

On the gun proposition, the State Department's legal experts take the view that the German claim is disposed of by the New York port collector's report, declaring his inspectors examined every part of the vessel carefully, even entering the hold, without finding the weapons referred to. It will be pointed out also that no part of the decks was strengthened to receive them.

The carrying of small arms and ammunition, it will be stated, was in accordance with law, and the exact statute will be cited to prove this. The charge that the manifest was falsified to conceal the alleged fact that hidden explosives were carried the opinion will say, amounts, even if true, only to a case of fraud or conspiracy against the government of the United States, making the vessel, as carrying contraband, possible subject to seizure but not to destruction.

Councellor Robert Lansing, of the State Department, who is preparing the legal facts in connection with the German reply, frankly stated today that every suggestion raised on behalf of the German position was being carefully examined, whether relevant to issues or not. In this connection the Treasury Department is investigating the circumstances surrounding the affidavit filed with the government.

President Wilson spent a good portion of yesterday alone in his study going over the memoranda dealing with the German position. Included were suggestions and opinions from the Cabinet legal experts, as well as the information compiled by the State Department. From the mass the President expected t owind out the German note so that he can reduce it to form probably tonight and then take it up with the Cabinet Friday.

It is asserted positively in unusually well informed circles that executive is standing firm for his demand that Germany recognize Americans' rights to travel in safety, and if Germany complies, it was said, all danger of a rupture would disappear immediately, inasmuch as other issues involved can be disposed of leisurely through the regular diplomatic channels.

That Count von Bernstorff has sent word to his home government emphasizing the importance of this fact is known. It is understood that in addition to putting it up to the German foreign office he has sent a direct message to the Kaiser urging that nothing be left undone to satisfy the American public at this time.

FLOODS IN THE POTOMAC.

Six Inches of Rain Have Fallen in Shenandoah Valley Since Tuesday.

Cumberland, Md., June 4.—The Potomac river reached Water and Paca streets yesterday, but did no damage to houses. Wills creek went far out of its banks, entering the back yards of homes on North Mechanic street. The waters are receding. The heaviest loss was suffered by the Vang Construction Company, which is erecting the new Market street bridge. Practically all the work, including cofferdams, was carried away, with the exception of one concrete pier. The work will probably be delayed a month. A number of small landslides occurred on the Western Maryland Railway, but little delay to traffic resulted. At Piedmont and Westernport the flood washed away fences and outbuildings. The water covered the dam in Willis creek. Boxes, barrels, crossties and wooden wreckage were carried down the streams in great quantities.

Hagerstown, Md., June 4.—The Potomac river at Williamsport overflowed its banks yesterday and inundated the lowlands. The river rose rapidly all morning and yesterday evening reached 26 feet above normal. Many acres of pasture and wheat land are under water, which at places is five feet deep. South of Williamsport the river and Chesapeake and Ohio Canal are one body of water. The river has leaped the canal banks on four-mile level and families living along the canal were forced to move to higher ground. At Williamsport the Conocheague creek has overflowed its banks.

Winchester, Va., June 4.—Nearly six inches of rain has fallen in the Shenandoah Valley since Tuesday night and it continued last night. All streams have been converted into torrents, waters of the Opequon and other creeks are flooding great areas of lowlands. Automobiles and other vehicles are marooned in inundated roads.

Baltimore and Ohio trainmen reported the Potomac river at Harpers Ferry 19 feet above normal. The Shenandoah also is flooded.

TWO DESPERADOES TAKEN.

Nephew And Companion Beat up and Rob Aged Uncle, Then Shoot Him And Flee.

Erie, Pa., June 4.—Richard Mack, a prosperous farmer living near Waterford, this county, is dying in the Logan Hospital at Cambridge Springs, and his nephew, Earl Mack, and Emery Eaton, of Sherman, N. Y., are locked up, having confessed attacking the aged man with a club, robbing and then shooting him in the left lung, just over the heart.

The pair was captured about six o'clock Wednesday evening by Francis Duncome, a letter carrier, from Waterford, who was one of a posse of 300 men recruited from the vicinity of Waterford, that, under the direction of County Detective Sullivan, had been engaged in the man-hunt since the affair took place.

ANOTHER MISTAKE

Submarine Commander Did Not Know It Was Belgian Boat He Was Sinking.

Penzance, England, June 4—The captain of the Belgian trawler Delta B., sunk by a German submarine off the Scilly Islands Wednesday states that after the crew had taken to the boats the commander of the submarine offered to take them aboard, explaining he was unaware that their craft was Belgian.

The submarine attacked the trawler by shell fire. It was not until the trawler had been hit several times and damaged badly, a boy being injured, that the captain abandoned efforts to escape and surrender.

Miller's Child Killed.

Albemarle, N. C., June 4.—A most distressing accident occurred at Palestine, a small town on the Winston-Salem Southbound, about five miles north of Albemarle, a day or two ago when the little six year old child of Mr. John Hall, of that place, was accidentally caught in the shafting of a roller flour mill and killed instantly. Mr. Hall is the miller and it seems that the little child was playing about in the mill when it came in contact with the shafting, a part of its head being torn off.

VIE IN PAYING THEIR HOMAGE

Military Pageant Closes Twenty-Fifth Reunion of Veterans

REBEL YELLS IN AIR

Governor of Connecticut and Foot Guards of That State Salute Memorials to Southerners.

Richmond, June 4—Men who had fought for their country and boys who bore wooden guns paid their homage yesterday afternoon as they passed the statue of general Robert E. Lee in the twenty-fifth annual parade of the United Confederate Veterans.

In the line that passed from the Capitol Square to Mounment Avenue where Lee's Statue stands was a Northern command—the Governor's Foot Guard of Connecticut.

It was significant that it was not merely a reunion of Confederate veterans; it was as well a reunion of those who had once been the bitterest foes.

The procession was the real finale of the reunion. The morning had been dark and drear with the threat of rain, and the parade was posted from 11 o'clock until 1. Even then the threat remained, but the parade was done and the last salute had been fired before the rain began.

Two hours it required for the procession to pass the reviewing stand where sat Governor Stuart, of Virginia; Governor McCreary, of Kentucky; Governor-Elect Nat L. Harris of Georgia; Governor Manning, of S. C., Mayor Preston, of Baltimore, and Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, of Connecticut, the first Governor of a Northern State ever to watch a Confederate march in times of peace. For him there were as many cheers as for those Southern Governors who had passed through war's bitter travail and still remembered the succeeding days.

From Capitol Square, which had been thronged all day, up Grace St., to Fifth and from Fifth to Franklin and out to Lee Circle, in Monument Avenue, the streets were lined with more than 100,000 people. There were solid aisles, standing upon curb and paving, on porch and in window and in door. When the first bomb fired by the Signal Corps starting the parade was sounded the cheering began, and the rebel cry loosed in Capitol Square was taken up until it reached the stand at Lee Circle, where the children's human flag was formed.

Here around the statue to Lee and as far east as the monument to Stuart every stand was filled. More than 10,000 men, women and children were gathered on seats and in the parked spaces. So large were the throngs that the police, assisted by the Boy Scouts, had difficulty in keeping them behind the ropes.

Lee Circle was surrounded by stands, bleachers and seats improvised in the greenway. Southwest of the monument was constructed the stand for the human flag, composed of 600 children, so arranged as to form a perfect resemblance of the Stars and Bars. From 11 o'clock in the morning until the parade was ended these children remained in their seats and sang Southern songs. On the South side of the monument, inside the circle was reared the reviewing stand Other stands encircled the monument Seats were given to the veterans after the long parade, so that they could view in comfort the passing of their sons.

Two military balls last night brought the social side of the reunion to a close. An interesting closing event was the reproduction of the "Battle of the Crator," an elaborate fireworks display in which companies of the Virginia Grays participated, reproducing with realistic effect the battle at Petersburg June 30, 1864.

MARCH ON LEMBERG

Russians are Rolled Back on One Hundred Mile Front

Berlin, June 4—The Austro-German march on Lemberg has begun. Upon a 100-mile front, the combined forces of Mackensen and Lindsingen are rolling the Russians back upon their last stronghold in Galicia. The Slavs are making desperate efforts to reform their lines for a final stand.

From his new headquarters in Przemysl General Mackensen telegraphed a message of congratulations to the King of Bavaria today.

"The conduct of our brave Bavarian troops had aided us in a great victory," wired the German commander. "They have won a name for themselves in the history of a great war."

Nearly three entire Austro-German army corps pressed on through Przemysl yesterday eastward along the Lemberg railway and occupied Medyka, eight miles east of the captured fortress, without resistance.

From the south, von Linsingen is hurling the full weight of his armies against the Russian left wing. A gigantic battle is raging along the entire front from the region of Sambor to north of Stryj. Repeated terrific Russian counter-attacks failed to halt the Austro-German advance north of Stryj, and the Russian left is slowly retiring.

In their retreat through the great Galicia petroleum district, the Russians are setting fire to every oil well in their path. Vienna dispatches estimate that 80,000 tons of oil have been set in flames.

London, June 4—After a siege of three weeks the fortress of Przemysl in Galicia, has fallen to the Austrians. The Russians were in possession a little over 70 days.

This news was received in London with a certain degree of surprise, While it had been well known that the Russian position at Przemysl was serious, to say the least, and that the artillery fire of the Germanic allies was daily becoming more terrific, the announcement from Vienna of an Austrian victory was not expected so quickly, particularly in view of the official statement from Petrograd of last Monday saying the Austro-German grip before Przemysl had been broken and that the offensive in the great Galician struggle had passed to the Russians.

When the Russians were forced to abandon some of the outer Przemysl forts they had no time to destroy the guns, which, on falling into Austro-German hands, were turned by their new owners against the inner fortifications.

TRAGEDY AT CROSSING.

Five Children of Family Hurt in Crash And Three May Die.

Vineland, N. J., June 4.—Three children were probably fatally injured and two others and a man badly hurt when a Jersey Central Railroad train smashed a carriage driven by C. Ferriti, 51 years old, at a grade crossing at Rosenhayn Wednesday evening. The little victims are all children of Giatano Manano, of Philadelphia. They were visiting Rosenhayn and had gone out in the carriage with Ferriti. His vision of the track was obscured by a blinding rain storm and the crash came without warning. Ferriti sustained six broken ribs and other severe injuries, but is expected to recover.

DOCTOR KILLED BY DRUGGIST

Returns Unexpectedly After Midnight and Shooting Follows

SUICIDE OF HIS WIFE

Parties to the Double Tragedy Among the Most Prominent in the State of Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss., June 4—Dr. R. E. Mauldin was shot and killed by A. C. Cox, of a prominent family while he was hiding under Mrs Cox's bed in her home at Artenia.

Mrs. Cox a young woman of exceptional beauty and belonging to a leading Southern family, ran to a bureau drawer and obtained twelve tablets of bichloride of mercury, which she swallowed. It is not believed she can live.

Discovery of the handsome young physician in the Cox home and his subsequent tragic death has caused a sensation because of the prominence of the families and the high esteem in which Mrs. Cox had been held.

It seems that Cox, a druggist, returned to his home unexpectedly at 1 o'clock in the morning. He had gone to Aberdeen to see a baseball game and it continued so long that he missed the only passenger train he could get for Artenia. Therefore he sent a telegram to Mrs. Cox that he would have to remain in Aberdeen over night.

Later however, he was able to get into the caboose of a freight train that brought him to Artenia between eleven o'clock and midnight. He remained around a hotel down town with friends for more than an hour and then started for his home.

As he entered the house he heard frightened whispers from his wife's bedroom and entered, turning on the light.

Under the bed he saw a man. Cox went to another room and obtained a revolver loaded with six cartridges. When he returned to the bedroom Dr Mauldin was still under the bed. He had not tried to escape from the house when Cox went for his weapon, it was explained, because Cox probably had taken Dr. Maulin's clothes out of the bedroom with him.

Stooping down Cox fired two shots at Dr. Mauldin. Fearing he had missed him, he pulled the bed out from the wall and stood over the physician and sent three bullets into his head, killing him. The sixth shot went into his body.

While Cox was shooting Dr. Mauldin his wife jumped out of the bed and went to the bureau drawer, where there was a bottle containing the twelve tablets of bichloride of mercury. Going to the bathroom, she washed them down her throat with water.

The neighborhood was aroused by the shooting, and in the excitement Mrs. Cox told no one for two hours that she had swallowed the poison. Only when she became ill did she say anything about her plight. Physicians were called to her aid, but she was unconscious and there was little hope of saving her life.

Cox surrendered himself, a coroner's jury held a perfunctory inquest and he was held in $1,000 bail for trial on a charge of murder. He would not speak of the tragedy, except to say that the finding of a man, and especially. Dr. Mauldin, in his home under such circumstances was an overpowering surprise. He and the physician, who went to Artenia about a year ago, were close friends, and the physician had been a welcome caller at his home. Cox still expressing affection for his wife worried greatly about her condition.

Flotilla of Destroyers at Queenstown When the Lusitania Was Destroyed

New York, June 4—A flotilla of British torpedoboats and torpedoboat destroyers was lying in Queenstown harbor on May 7, when the Lusitania was sunk, a few miles away, according to F. J. Gauntlett, an officer of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company and a Lusitania survivor, who came here on the American liner Philadelphia yesterday.

Mr. Gauntlett is very bitter against the British government, and as soon as possible after his arrival he consulted counsel about bringing a suit against the Cunard corporation.

"I was simply dumfounded," said Mr. Gauntlett, "when I found in Queenstown harbor a flotilla of serviceable torpedoboats and destroyers. There they were, secure and snug, with their crews lolling around their decks and German submarines blowing up English shipping a few hours away.

"The flotilla was in command of a superannuated officer, I made it my business to hunt him up ask him why he wasn't outside doing something. He said he was under admiralty orders not to risk his boats.

"Two days before the Lusitania was sunk a German submarine was seen right outside the entrance to Queenstown harbor. It was seen from shore The day before the Lusitania was sunk trawlers brought word to Queenstown that submarines were off the coast along the route used by transatlantic liners.

"The admiralty knew the Lusitania was coming and that submarine were lying in wait for her, but those torpedo boats and destroyers stuck in Queenstown harbor, and for all I know they are there yet.

"The Lusitania was struck by only one torpedo," Mr. Gauntlett continued. "When I have consulted with my lawyers I shall have a great deal to say about conditions on board the liner after she was attacked. Neither the stewards nor the seamen appeared to be familiar with their duty. The full story of the destruction of the Lusitania has not been told."

WAR HITS AMERICANS

Can't Buy Benzine or Gasoline in Rome at Present

Rome, June 4—Americans in Rome are experiencing the "hardships" of war. The economical American woman finds she can no longer buy benzine with which to clean her gloves The wealthy Americans can't buy benzine and gasoline with which to run their automobiles.

One woman in the American colony bought a whole tank full of benzine and had it secretly stored in her garage.

The next morning she was visited by the authorities who told her the benzine could be used to run the car only for business, and not for pleasure, with an added threat that it might be taken for Government use.

An appeal to Ambassador Page brought no relief.

CORNER STONE FOR MONUMENT

Major William A. Anderson Delivers Address on Jackson

IMPRESSIVE SCENES.

Distinguished Gathering to Witness Masonic Ritual at Spot Selected in Richmond.

Richmond, June 4—With the Massonic Grand Lodge of Virginia as the ceremonial artisans, there was laid at the intersection of the Boulevard and Mounment Avenue yesterday afternoon the corner-stone of the "Stonewall" Jackson Mounment—an equestrian statue, that will add a fourth heroic figure to the three that now look down upon Richmond's treelined avenue of fame.

Although there was absent the mighty concourse that would have rallied to the exercises had the weather been more auspicious, the cornor stone laying took place in the presence of a distinguished gathering. Among those on the platform with the officers of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Virginia, were Governor Henry Carter Stuart, Speaker of the House Edwin C. Cox, Judge D. C. Richardson, Judge George L. Christian, Major W. A. Anderson and Rev. James Power Smith, D. D., the last surviving field staff officer of Stonewall Jackson.

Despite a penetrating misty rain that descended throughout the exercises, the corner-stone laying, from the standpoint of its significance and the distinguished gathering that took part in and witnessed the ceremonies and particularly because of an address by former Attorney General Anderson that took rank as an oration of unusual power and eloquence was among the big events that marked the final day of the twenty-fifth annual Confederate Reunion.

The ceremony began at 4:30 o'clock, a few minutes after the mighty grand parade had made the circuit of the court of hornor. The little company of participants, accompanied by a hundred or two of spectators, who had already stood for hours by the curb watching the military pageant, found their way to the flag-draped stand and platform and the exercises opened without delay.

From the opening prayer by Rev. James Power Smith, D. D., a lieutenant on the staff of General Jackson, and master of ceremonies, to his brief benediction, the exercises occupied little more than an hour. It was a sixty-minute period, however, which made history for Richmond and which will retain an abiding place in the written history of the great reunion which has just come to a close.

The officers of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Virginia, under whose auspices the corner-stone was laid, are:

James B. Wood, grand master; James Alston Cabell, deputy grand master; Henry K. Field, grand senior warden; Earnest L. Cuningham grand junior warden; Fred Pleasants, grand treasurer; Joseph V. Bidgood, deputy grand treasurer; Charles A. Nesbitt, grand secretary; John F. Mayer, deputy grand secretary; Sol Cutchins, grand senior deacon; William W. Galt, grand junior deacon; Harry B. Lee, grand chaplain; James H. Price, grand marshal; James A. Pamplin, grand pursuivant; Oscar J. Adams, grand tiler, and A. W. Baker, grand steward.

WIFE'S MISSHOT KILLS.

Husband Gives Life as Price of Teaching Her to Shoot.

Pittsburgh, June 4.—In an effort to teach his wife how use a revolver, so she could protect herself while he was away from home, if the necessity should arise, Nicholas Hardinki, aged 33, of Homestead, was fatally injured. He died at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning, after being removed to the West Penn Hospital.

According to the police, Hardinki and his wife went to the cellar of their home, Tuesday night, and, after setting up a crude target, the husband gave his wife a practical demonstration of how to shoot effectively with the revolver.

"Oh, that's easy; let me try it," Mrs. Hardinki is alleged to have said.

Taking up the weapon, she grasped it firmly, but before she could raise her arm for the aim, the revolver was in some manner discharged, the bullet entering Hardinki's left lung.

Before he died, Hardinki exonerated his wife from all blame and declared the shooting was entirely accidental. Mrs. Hardinki who had been in custody, was later released.

MAY CLEAR THE ATMOSPHERE.

Statements, which some are inclined to believe, as to what transpired between the President and the German Ambassador, indicate the plan proposed by the latter for satisfying the American demands without impairing the prestige of Germany in the matter of its policy of submarine warfare. would be satisfactory to this country. The plan comprehends the abatement by Germany of submarine attacks upon ships known to be carrying citizens of the United States, providing this government shall suggest to its citizens that when taking passage to Europe they travel upon ships known not to carry contraband of war; the Imperial government to engage not to attack merchant vessels unless such are known positively to be carrying contraband. The plan contemplates the issuance of a proclamation by the President stating that belligerent ships must not accept Americans as passengers. In case the United States so agrees, the German ambassador proposes that Germany shall quietly stop using submarines against all merchant shipping, belligerent or otherwise, traveling the high seas with passengers, whether carrying contraband or not, without full opportunity for the noncombatants to take to boats and rafts.

This plan appears to mark out a way for Germany to come to the American position with the satisfaction of the United States making some formal concession to the German contention, even though after making this formal concession Germany will not take advantage of it but desist from submarine warfare upon noncombatants in all cases. President Wilson is represented as having said that as a consideration for the United States to go into any details the German government must first assent to the proposition of the safety of the seas. He thus places the ends of humanity above the interests of the two nations in the adjustment of the questions in dispute.

It is suggested that the transmission of the Bernstorff proposals and of the positive stand of the head of the nation as to the salient feature of it demands, to the Berlin government through the State Departments code, will insure the rapid reception of the message without its contents coming to the knowledge of the English in transmission. Thus, too, the Berlin government will be made acquainted with the actual sentiment of the American people and the fixity of their position in the matter of important modifications of the submarine procedure.

It is important to observe the significant fact that the key of the diplomatic situation is now with the United States. Germany has had its opportunity to act rashly and has not done so. It has had its opportunity of showing its contempt for America and its menace and it has not done so. Germany has shown upon the other hand evidence of a real purpose to keep the peace and to arrive at an understanding—bunglingly as appears in the German note. The American people are willing to credit failure to appreciate the full force of their sentiment to the difficulties advanced by the German ambassador and now that this sentiment is being made definitely known, it is believed the next note of the head of the nation will result in satisfactory disposition of the prime demand of humanity in submarine warfare.

WAR THEN AND NOW.

When the Cunard steamer Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine last month and over a thousand persons, including many women and children, drowned, the Gazette called attention to the fact that during hostilities between the north and south, half a century ago, especial care was taken on both sides to safeguard non-combattants. Reference was made to Admiral Semmes's book, "Four Years Afloat," and to the careers of the Confederate steamers Sumter, Alabama, Florida, Shenandoah, Nashville and others No lives were lost in any case where it was necessary to destroy vessels belonging in the northern section of the country. The following communication, signed "Courier," in the Richmond Journal, is suggestive at this time, after the world has been horrified at the terrible scenes enacted a few miles from the coast of Ireland:

For the benefit of the present generation I wish to give you an account of a war incident of the year 1864 when the Army of Northern Virginia, under General Lee, and the Army of the Potomac, under General Grant, were facing each other on the Southside.

General Grant's headquarters were at City Point and that was the base of his supplies. Colonel Thomas H. Carter, of the Second Corps of the Army of Northern Virginia, had been ordered by General Lee to remain on the north side of the James River with several battaljons of artillery, and was directed to annoy the enemy's transport in James River below City Point. On one occasion he took three batteries of artillery to a bluff below Wilcox Landing in James River, some distance below City Point. He placed the batteries at night, concealing them with brush. At daylight the next morning they were ready to attempt to annoy the enemy. For several hours in the morning nothing passed up or down the river in this locality, but later in the day a large passenger steamer came up James River, bound for City Point, loaded down with troops. Nothing could be seen on her as the steamer approached except soldiers. The guns were all sighted for her and the command "Ready" was given as the steamer got in close range. Just as the men were about to fire two women walked on deck of the steamer and began looking around the country. Colonel Carter ordered the men not to fire, saying, "We are fighting armed men, not women." It was afterwards, ascertained that there were more than 300 commissioned officers on that steamer and that those two women were the only non-combatants aboard.

The above incident can well be contrasted with the action taken in regard to the Lusitania. In one case chivalry and humanity prevailed. In regard to the other I wish to make no comment, leaving that for others.

As an indication that Germany's flour supply is not insufficient the authorities have announced that the prices of various kinds of breads will be reduced all over Greater Berlin June 7. Beginning on the same date, the baking of small loaves from white flour again will be permitted.

Another nation has entered the European war today. The republic of San Marino, the smallest independent state in Europe, has declared war upon Austria. San Marino contains only twenty-two square miles of territory, but has its own government. It is surrounded by Italian soil, lying twelve miles from Rimini.

Joel M. Foster, a wealthy poultry man of Browns Mills, N. J., entered a plea of guilty to bringing to Alabama Delilah Bradley, his pretty 17 year old stenographer, of Pemberton, N. J., and was fined $150 and costs in Mobile. A charge of violating the Mann white slave act is pending against Foster in Federal district court, and he is out on $5,000 bond.

To supplement and re-enforce his official report to the German government on the position of the United States in the present critical situation, the German Ambassador is sending a special representative to Berlin at once. The German Ambassador has selected for this almost unprecedented mission, a German of great prominence in the business life of the United States. Some say Dr. Durnberg has been selected.

An Athens dispatch via Rome states that Bulgaria is concenetrating an army on the Turkish frontier. This has occasioned great alarm in Constantinople with the result that troops in large numbers are being recalled from the Gallipoli Peninsula and rushed the Adrianople and Kirk-Kilisse to meet eventualities that are anticipated in that quarter in consequence of the threatening aspect on the Bulgarian frontier.

VIRGINIA NEWS

Creth Slate, a motorman, was shot and painfully injured in Petresburg yesterday evening by William Roberts. The only reason assigned is jealousy on the part of Roberts.

The Manassas town council has issued an invitation to the Confederate veterans who attended the reunion in Richmond to visit the historic plains of Manassas tomorrow morning.

A violent earthquake at 3:35 a. m., yesterday wrecked part of the instruments in the great Munich observatory and rattled windows all over the city. Many persons fled to the street in their night clothes.

Three men are dead as a result of an attempt Wednesday to liberate from the Miami, Fla., jail John Ashley, under sentence to be executed June 18 for the murder of a Seminole Indian.

Raynore Hacker, a policeman of the Du Pont Powder Company, was shot and killed today at Hopewell, Prince George county, the site of the new plant. The shot is alleged to have been fired by J. C. Tyler one of the men employed by the company.

W. A. Herron, an employe at the Hopewell plant, Prince George county, was fatally injured between cars Wednesday. His left arm and right leg were crushed, and a double amputation was performed. He died at the Petersburg Hospital.

More than thirty armed residents of Kentuck, near Danville, are seeking Sherman Stanfield, a young negro, who late yesterday evening is alleged to have criminally assaulted Elizabeth Collie, the ten year old daughter of Ewart Collie, a prominent farmer of the county.

Charles Crawley, a yard brakeman, was injured severly yesterday when the car upon which he was riding on the old line of the Southern Railway ran into a slide and was derailed near Lynchburg. He was thrown from the car head foremost, his head sticking in the mud, so that fellow-workmen had to pull him out.

The national board of the Young Women's Christian Association soon will send twelve missionaries to the foreign field. Those assigned to China include Miss Jean G. Paxton, of Glasgow, and Miss Harriet Wachin Smith, of Richmond.

Miss Katie Knowles, the 15 year old daughter of Mrs. Charles M. Knowles, of Madison Heights, Lynchburg, was shot in the throat Wednesday night by her mother, who was handling a revolver thought to be unloaded. Her wound is serious, but will not likely prove fatal.

Sunday "blue laws" are not in favor with the authorities in Bristol. The council, at a meeting Tuesday night, voted five to three to repeal the old "blue law" which was enacted by the council in 1895, the resolution adopted stating that the State laws controlling Sunday business were sufficient to be the guide of the municipality. With the repeal of this law, it is quite certain that Bristol, Tenn., will not undertake to enforce regulations that are not to be enforced in Bristol, Va.

Mrs. Reginald Brooks, of Mirador, Albemarle county, one of the five famed Langhorne sisters, who, only a few weeks ago returned from England, where she went to assist her sister, Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, in nursing wounded British soldiers, has evidently tired of quiet country life in Albemarle, for she has appeared before the clerk of the Circuit Court to have her application certified by him for a passport to be issued by the State Department, at Washington.

August Schaffer, of the Maysville Water Works, Lexington, Ky., who eighteen months ago predicted the great European war, even to Italy's course, now predicts that within the next four weeks San Francisco will be practically destroyed by volcanic disturbances, the loss of life and property being greater than that caused by the earthquake there several years ago. He also predicts that the East will be swept by devasating floods, that New York City will be engulfed by eighteen feet of water and that many lives will be lost.

COAST SWEPT BY STORM.

Number of Vessels Reported in Distress off Capes.

Norfolk, Va., June 4.—With a 60-mile northeaster, accompanied by a steady downpour of rain, sweeping the coast, a number of vessels came to grief Wednesday night and yesterday. Damage to property on shore will amount to several hundred thousands of dollars.

At Ocean View high seas, rain and wind tore down several cottages and damaged a score of others. The beach for several miles was washed away by high seas.

Steamers on the bay had a decidedly uncomfortable time of it, although none of them suffered any very serious damage, and except for occasional attacks of sea sickness, none of the passengers was seriously inconvenienced except those on the Old Bay Line Steamer Virginia.

The Virginia left Old Point Comfort on time Wednesday night, but got caught in the worst of the gale that prevailed through the night on the bay. Her smokestack was carried away when off Timble Shoals light and she anchored. Yesterday morning the steamer was towed back to Old Point Comfort.

Great excitement prevailed among the scores of passengers aboard. There was a general rush for lifebelts and the decks and it was with the greatest of difficulty that Captain Lane and other officers were able to assure them that there was little or no real damage. The passengers were informed that shallow water was less than a mile away and that the steamer had been headed for the shelter of Back River, but it was hours before lifebelts were removed and the frightened men and women persuaded to retire for the night.

The Southland, of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Co., reached Alexandria about 40 minutes late yesterday morning.

Cleveland, Ohio, is facing the probability of a general strike of building trades, following the calling of a strike among members of the glazers' union Wednesday night. More than 100 glaziers employed by various sash, door, and window manufacturers in Cleveland were doing picket duty yesterday in every important building in the city under the course of construction. The 10,000 members of unions affiliated with the building trades council also probably will walk out if any attempt is made by employers to fill the strikers' places.

MEALS ARE NEVER LATE

WHEN you're behind with your work, with only a few minutes in which to get supper — then the handy NEW PERFECTION Oil Cookstove helps you to hurry.

It lights at the touch of a match, and cooks rapidly like a gas stove.

It regulates high or low, merely by raising or lowering the wick. It is easy to operate, easy to clean, easy to re-wick.

Sold in 1, 2, 3 and 4 burner sizes by hardware, furniture and department stores everywhere.

NEW PERFECTION OVENS bake better because a current of fresh hot air passes continually over and under the food — drying out the steam, and preventing sogginess. This is an exclusive NEW PERFECTION advantage.

Use Aladdin Security Oil or Diamond White Oil to obtain the best results in oil Stoves, Heaters and Lamps.

"The same soil was there all the while"

"Prairie sections which once went begging for buyers at a dollar an acre are now bearing enough cotton and cane and truck and fruit to raise their value a hundred fold. It was always worth a hundred times as much as its selling price but not to the owner who couldn't find it out." HERBERT KAUFMAN
